

Injectable PrEP

An alternative way to take PrEP. Ask your medical provider if Injectable PrEP is right for you.

What is Injectable PrEP?

Injectable PrEP is another way of protecting yourself against HIV. Injectable PrEP can be good for you if you can't take Daily PrEP medication. Apretude is the only medication approved for anyone who is at risk for HIV.

How can I start Injectable PrEP?

Reach out to your healthcare team to get started.

Injection Schedule

Your first and second doses will be one month apart. After your second dose, you will come in every other month. Please refer to the sample schedule below for a peek at what that could look like:

(Injection schedule would continue every other month)

How much will Injectable PrEP cost me?

The cost of Injectable PrEP can vary. Depending on your insurance, there may be low to no cost options. Discuss cost with your healthcare team.

How often will I have to come in for my injection, follow-ups, and blood work?

Injectable PrEP consists of two initiation injections given one month apart, then every two months after that. Most patients will only need to see their medical provider once every 12 months. HIV testing will happen at every injection visit.

What if I miss an injection or I can't make it to my appointment?

If you can't make it to your appointment, please contact your healthcare team so they can reschedule your appointment as soon as possible.

What if I change my mind and do not want to continue on Injectable PrEP?

If Injectable PrEP turns out to not be right for you, for whatever reason, talk to your healthcare team to discuss your options.
